What I'm Offering:

- an unpaid OJT opportunity to learn web development (programming) and content management system (CMS) administration
- personal mentoring and advocacy relationship
- development of “soft skills”
  - basic job skills
  - writing in a business setting
  - conflict resolution
  - how to interact with clients professionally
  - customer service skills
- paid opportunities upon proficiency of skills
- assistance with external job placement opportunities
  - resume building and interviewing skills
  - work experience and developed sites for reference
  - employment references

Why Would This Be Beneficial:

Jobs in programming frequently have more flexibility which make them ideal for parents, students, empty-nesters, or adults who care for a sick relative. This specific opportunity is designed to be primarily training that evolves into part-time, but could possibly be a long-term part-time/full-time solution for the candidate if that is mutually beneficial. There are numerous free-lance opportunities (eLance.com, upwork.com, freelancer.com) for anyone who wants them and can provide the services required.

You might like programming if:

- you like to solve puzzles and problems
- you are task-oriented
- you are creative
- you like to learn new things
- you want to work at your own pace (faster or slower)
- you want TONS of flexibility
- you like the idea of using the internet to solve REAL, ACTUAL problems

Requirements and Expectations:

- be respectful
- communicate
- come ready to learn and work with a positive attitude at my house 5-10 hours/week at agreed-upon times for training and work
- be punctual
- be flexible with the demands of my life
- be willing to do training on your own time

Expectations of me:

- I will be respectful
- I will communicate
- I will be ready to learn and work and teach alongside you
- I will be punctual
- I will be flexible with the demands of your life
- I will try to provide a laptop on a Loan-To-Own program
- I will be a champion for your life and career
